nation as to just how and why the expenditures are made."

The governor urged the Legislature to declare a public school policy, asserting "there can be no effective policies until there are funds to meet these policies." Likewise, he pointed out, "a declared policy as to our institutions of higher learning" is not required.

For the sum named in the budget of $39,446,115—Governor Pinchot said he was "fully prepared to carry on the work of the State and he told the members of the Legislature that he was not asking for new taxes. The suggested reduction of appropriations, he declared, "does not necessarily call for a reduction in the amount or quality of the executive work of the State."

"There is now an appropriation liability of $5,617,000 for appropriations made by legislatures previous to 1921," the governor explained. "Our unpaid debt on November 30, 1922, had reached a net total, after all appropriations not actually executed had been paid, of $23,337,000. Add to this deficits recently reported of not less than $7,500,000, incurred or accrued beyond the amounts appropriated, and subtract from it $1,000,000, the outside limit of current appropriations made but that may not be required, and we reach the unwelcome and disquieting conclusion that the liability of this year, the Commonwealth will have to meet total appropriation liability, over and above income, of about $29,551,000. In other words, we have failed to live within our means by that huge sum—we owe that much and must postpone payment. The above total deficit of $7,500,000, however, can be reduced to $946,000. This leaves a net liability of $23,096,000."

The Legislature of 1921 appropriated in round numbers $137,654,000.

which Governor Spruill claimed by veto to $118,154,000. Of this amount, about $72,654,000 had not been paid out and was therefore a liability on November 30, 1932. Add to this $55,087,000 of liabilities from previous appropriation periods still unpaid, and also the minimum deficit of the present appropriation period of $18,685,000, the total liability on November 30 of June 1 next of $157,966,000. It is believed that the total of appropriations uncalled for will be around $1,000,000. This leaves a net total appropriation liability of $1,008,000.

The auditor general, he explained, estimates the revenue from taxation in the general fund for the next two years at $23,932,000. The total revenue of $29,000,000, liability of $2,494,000 will be available. In the absence of detailed estimate, the governor declared he is justified in accepting the opinion of the committee on the finances of Pennsylvania that "with the return of good times during the next two years, $3,000,000 more than the estimate of the auditor general, or a total revenue of $11,000,000 may be counted on with safety."

"I accept also the judgment of the committee that, by the most rigid economy and restraint, about $3,500,000 can be saved from existing appropriations," he added. "I have, therefore, added these two sums, or $6,500,000 to the $22,994,000 available as above, and have prepared a budget of $29,494,000 total of new expenditures of $84,466,000."

The governor put aside a suggestion which he said has been made that payments of the deficit be spread over several appropriation periods with the statement that this would be "merely to prolong the present intolerable situation."

He then asked the committee to keep the expenditures of the State within its Continued on Page Ten.

300 Stills, 500 Gallons Whisky Are Destroyed

Three hundred stills, 500 gallons of moonshine whisky, 3,800 gallons of beer and thousands of gallons of mash were destroyed this afternoon by the State Police at New Salem. The stock of liquor and the equipment for its manufacture had been accumulating since October 1.

The property represents the confiscation in 400 arrests, as a result of which fines aggregating $58,000 were paid.

The proceeds of the sale of copper stills is to be given to the Children's Aid Society in Untowntown.

Americans Spend Dollar for Church Nine for Luxuries

By Associated Press

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Each American spent nearly nine times as much for luxuries in 1922 as the average Methodist Episcopal church member donated for religious purposes, reports emanating from the conference of the 200 of the church leaders sat today. The annual report of the committee on conservation and advance, read by Dr. R. F. Wade of Chicago, stated that per capita giving by church members during 1922 was $2.40 while the average American expended about $200 for luxuries.

New York, Jan. 25.—Thomas Dixon, Jr., author of "The Klansman," vigorously condemned the modern Ku Klux Klan in an address last night and declared it had stolen the livery of the original order. He was one of several speakers at a meeting of the American Unity League to devise a plan for the overthrow of the hooded organization.

Dixon said that when the modern Klan was organized a few years ago, he declined an invitation to join, warning the organizers that "if they dared to use the disguise in a secret coat-and-carry order, today with its coat-and-carry law restricting under civil government, the end was sure—riot, anarchy, bloodshed and martial law."

TAKEN TO PITTSBURG.

Normalville Youth Will Be Arraigned for Entering Postoffice.

Stamford King who was arrested Sunday at Normalville on the charge of breaking into the postoffice was taken to Pittsburgh yesterday afternoon by a trucking under a Tallent where he will be given a hearing.

Court News End.

All jurors for criminal court at Uniontown this week were discharged today with the exception of those in the case of Dominik Chapeaux, charged with killing Andy Mazur at Lawrenceport, and that of Martin Sosler, charged with the rape and fatal injury of Elizabeth Watkins-haw along the National Pike.

The goal is 350 members. It is a big task, but the legionnaires are buckling down to the job. An invitation to new legionnaires to join the organization is issued.

There are 10 team captains and each will have two soldiers. These have been armed with all the necessary equipment for an intensive campaign and the workers are men who will keep up an increasing output.

German Government Says 165,000 Men Idle At Thyssen and Stinnes Plants
French Threaten Isolation If German Resistance to Orders Continues

On the other hand Berlin claims 55,000 men have gone on strike in the Thyssen and Stinnes works in the Ruhr.

Paris announces new and drastic measures to be taken if German resistance in the Ruhr continues. These measures call for total isolation of the valley, complete control of the railways, railroads and public utilities and introduction of new currency to meet the money stringency caused by Germany holding cash.

Downing out this forecast a Fortnum message says the French troops already are guarding all exits from the Ruhr ready to execute the isolation policy if there is a general strike or rioting.

Conflict between the British and the French over arrest and expulsions in the latter in the Cologne area, a railway bridgehead section, was avoided by instructions from London to the British military authorities not to interfere although not to cooperate.

12585N. Jan 23 --Not a pick was being nor a wheel turning in at least a dozen mines in the Ruhr valley this afternoon. All their workmen were on strike in protest against the arrest of the mine directors.

The latest additions to the ranks of the strikers were the entire forces of Maiting Stinnen' mines in the Düsseldorf district and those of the Thyssen forests at Hamborn after the workmen had vainly demanded the release of Fritz Thyssen and Herr Spindler.

British Military Not to Interfere With French Plans

By Associated Press.
LONDON, Jan. 21.—The British government has instructed its military representatives on the Rhine not to interfere with the arrest and extradition of German officials being carried out by the French. At the same time the British are instructed not to cooperate or allow themselves to become involved in any incidents of a kind.

It is understood Dr. Friederick Grimm, attorney for the men accused of refusing to obey the orders of the French, has pleaded lack of jurisdiction and competence in the French court.

Some Still Striking.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The sub-committee of bituminous coal operators and labor union chiefs considering a new wage agreement to replace that expiring in the Tri-State Competitive Field on April 1 reached an agreement today.

Michael G. Eganer, an Ohio operator and joint chairman of the sub-committee, declined to make public details of the new agreement or let them to say that it involved no vital changes in the terms of the present contract.

FLAIRISHIN RG, Jan. 23 - "If Pennsylvania needs three state universities, as has been recently urged, she certainly needs one, and the logical place to begin is at the Pennsylvania State College," said Dr. John M.

There has been much discussion on the changing of the name of State College to 'The Pennsylvania State University,' ever since President Thomas first proposed it in his inaugural address little more than a year ago. Scores of public organizations, state-wide and local, have endorsed the change and everywhere the proposal is meeting with favor. Pres-

"The other professional schools at State College have been dissipated by the publication of the rumpus development plan, which projects only buildings for the schools now maintained by the institution, and which are natural and necessary to the genius of a lead grant institution."

"The justice of the title 'University' for what we now have and are can not be disputed," said President Thomas.

"The change in the title to State University would be no more than 25 other states in the union have made in the creation of their state universities."

Among the many important matters to be undertaken by the trustees today is the formation of a state legislative appropriation budget for maintenance and a building program covering the next two years.

TO ENROLL HUNDREDS

The Chamber of Commerce of Connellsville pledged their support of the movement at this end. Activities to interest the people of the community in agitating a continuance of the work already begun through state appropriations will be inaugurated and members enrolled in the league.

The Connellsville-to-Farmington Good Roads League is a live factor in the mountain section. It has 1,000 members enrolled. There is no fee, the only obligation being that each member be a voter and an active booster for the new road. Men and Here, however, a personal canvass would require considerable time and cards will be used instead. At the Kiwanis Club luncheon tomorrow the enrollment cards will be distributed. They will also be mailed to members of the Chamber of Commerce and the automobile club. Each will be in an addressed, stamped envelop for return and will cost no one anything. However, if a donation is given, it will be applied to the fund for defraying expenses in connection with the campaign for the road.

The road organization in the mountains is headed by C. B. Sipe, president, and W. S. Colborn, secretary and treasurer. It is planned to take the names of the petitioners to Harrisburg as soon as every available name has been secured. These will be submitted to the legislature and an appropriation to complete the road will be asked.

Members of the Woman's Culture Club protested against the return of Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle to the moving picture screen at the semi-monthly meeting Monday afternoon at the Carnegie Free Library and voted to send a letter to managers of Connelleville theatres, asking them to refrain from showing the film comedian's pictures.

NEW BRIDGE, Jan. 23.—Major Harry C. Cuthbertson, 61 years old, thorough tax collector, died Monday at his home here. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American War and had command of the "Fighting" Tenth Regiment during the battle of Malaita, Philippine Islands, July 31-August 1, 1899. For conspicuous bravery he was promoted Lieutenant colonel.

He had been prominent in the Pennsylvania National Guard for 43 years, enlisting when 18 years old. He was for many years a major and commander of the 10th battalion of this regiment. He retired from active service in 1910. He leaves two sisters, Misses Jessie and Margaret Frances Cuthbertson.

The funeral will be Wednesday afternoon.

TIME TO DECIDE ON A COURSE OF ACTION

Providing a general hospital is an object of these projects which from time to time command the attention of all citizens of Connellsville who are not so absorbed in their own concerns and affairs that they cannot give some thought to the welfare of the community. That question is definitely settled in the mind of every person conversant with the situation. Instead of the citizens of the community are called to assemble for the purpose of being informed as to the present status of the movement which had its inception four years ago and which meantime has lain more or less dormant until inquiry was being made into certain phases of the proposition principally its legal aspects.

Other communities which Connellsville will not concede are in most matters more progressive or more conservative than our own. They have provided themselves with general hospitals which are, in every way highly creditable to the spirit of enterprise and recognition of the public necessities. The people here have been in a waiting attitude for several years withholding action of any kind until the way was made clear for getting behind a movement to provide a hospital.

It being the belief of those who have been working on the proposition that the time has come when a definite course of action should be decided upon, the question now available will be placed before the meeting on Thursday evening for such discussion as may appear to be desirable or necessary in order to arrive at a conclusion as to what should be done to get the project under way.

All public spirited citizens will have a desire to become identified with a movement of such importance to the entire northern section of Fayette county, hence it will be expected that they will give proof of their sympathy and interest by being present to hear what is said and be ready to participate in whatever action may be deemed advisable to be taken.

SIMPLIFYING THE GAME CODE. A revision of the game laws of the state which has become one of the favorite indoor sports during the bi-annual sessions of the Legislature is being proposed. As thus far outlined the changes are in the direction of a simplification of the code which has become so unchristian and complicated as to make it difficult to be understood by the average devotee of the rod and gun.

With each succeeding Legislature making radical changes in the law particularly as to the seasons for different kinds of game great confusion has existed and many presumably well posted sportsmen do not know from one hunting season to the next what are the precise requirements of the law. In the case of those not posted at all there has developed a disregard for the law which has resulted in many and gross violations through the killing of game out of season.

If the decision can be reached by the State Game Commission and the Legislature as to what is the simplest code and it is kept free from changes at each session of the Legislature, the game will be more popular and sportsmen will at all times know when the open seasons will recur. At the same time there will develop a public knowledge as to the provisions of the law all of which should tend to minimize its violations and make it easier for game wardens to enforce it.

As you may yourself become an inmate some day of the general hospital meeting Thursday evening to assist in getting the movement started right.

Although the veterans of the World War are still young men—boys in fact—they are answering the late roll-call almost as rapidly as the boys of '61.

"Klansman" vs. Klan

Philadelphia Ledger

Here is a curious and significant sidelight on the Ku Klux Klan's revival. New York is forming an American Unity League to battle the hooded gentry. Among its charter members is Thomas Dixon, author of 'The Klansman', from which David Wark Griffith made his film-play, 'The Birth of a Nation'. In both book and play the K K K are angels of light and every Klansman a hero. Both might easily be used for present-day Klan propaganda. Yet Dixon is lining up with the Klan's sworn enemies bent on a congressional investigation of all Klannishness.

It is logical and natural that he should for he was writing about a glorified Klan of Reconstruction Days, and not this medley of hate and un-Americanism that a gang of promoters set up down in Atlanta to take their "cotton money" away from the "poor whites".

Wally Reid

Harrisburg Telegraph

Thousands of movie lovers the country over will mourn the death of Wally Reid, a screen favorite who depended upon cleverness and ability to put over the comedies for which he was famous.

The pity of it is that Reid who presented such clean, wholesome pictures should have gone down in the mad whirl of Hollywood.

That he was right at heart and had broken himself of the habit of indulgence in drugs before he died will be cold comfort to the loved ones he leaves.

Perhaps his death may prove a deterring factor in the lives of some of his fellows of the silver screen but not likely.

The fast ones of the movie crowd are not likely to retire more than a moment in their wild career.

But a public which likes the screen and wants to be fond of its people finds its enthusiasm chilled every time there is an occurrence of this kind.

Capit Never Grows Old

Public Meeting

Man's inhumanity to man is as nothing to a maiden aunt to her niece. From Boston comes the story of how Eva Sadowski, spinster and 65 years old, lived with Nellie Grabol and gave $1000 to her. As evidence of her affection the young woman bought a comb and a burial garment for her aunt.

Then the spinster stepped out and married Charles Lukas who promptly demanded the return of the $1000.

Judge Murray now is calling the case a modern Solomon trying to hold the scales of justice even between a bridegroom and an 85-year-old bride on one hand and a sorrowing niece a perfectly good comb and a burial garment on the other.

When the maiden ladies cease thinking about marriage?

An answer to a woman of 85. You'll have to ask someone older than I am, was her answer.

CYNIC AND FOOL. Heed not the cynic nor the grinning fool. Neither is right in all that he decries. Life is not but a heap of needless cares.

Unending misery and drab affairs. To call it always happy is but to fool. The harlequin upon a dunce's stool. May music the sombre rainiest duty wear.

But men cannot be children out of season. Neither is right! Life is a moving stream. When are the floated freight of joy and care. Needless at times the agonies may burn.

But never doubt they have a purpose there. (Copyright 1923 by Edgar A. Guest) expressing our most sincere regret because of your decision to withdraw

RENEWED TESTIMONY

No one in Connelville who suffers backache, headaches, or distressing urinary ills can afford to ignore this Connelville woman's twice-told story. It is confirmed testimony that no Connelville resident can doubt.
Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. W. B. Bowers, 134 North Third street, Connelville, says: "An attack of influenza put my kidneys in a weak condition. They became disordered and acted too frequently. My back ached constantly and I suffered with headaches and dizzy spells. Black specks blurred my sight and I was weak and run down. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at the Connelville Drug
Co., and they greatly benefited me.
(Statement given August 9, 1919).
On December 9, 1922 Mrs. Bowers said: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of an attack of kidney disorder and distressing pains in my back. I always keep them on hand and I gladly endorse all I said in 1919."

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

Sharing the Work.

When I tried to get my boy and girl to keep their playroom as clean as the rest of the house, I was always doing less than the other and there was continual fussing. Finally I drew a chalk mark down the middle of the beginning of the week and gave each of them half of the room to take care of. Now they vie with each other in seeing whose half looks the neatest.

Easy for Modern Boxer

The old time fighter of the small purses and the bare knuckles says the present boxer has a cinch. But the fighter of ancient Greece was one who seemed everything he got out of. Theseus son of Aegeus king of Athens 3000 years ago, was the mythical originator of boxing. Boxing appeared in the annals of the Olympic games about 800 B. C. The ancient Greek boxers fought a finish which was death. The Greek boxing glove of that era was made of leather and iron, with short spikes fixed on the knuckles of each hand—an implement of terrible punishment. There was no foot work, no backing away. He who sought to win a blow was considered a coward.

ECKERSALL ESCAPED INJURY ON GRIDIRON

Only Once Was Hyde Park Star Taken Out of Game.

Played Four Years With University of Chicago and During That Period Received Severe Blow by Curly of Michigan.

One of the most remarkable instances of a great football player being rarely hurt was that of Walter Eckersall, four years a star with Hyde Park High in Chicago and the same length of time for the University of Chicago.

He battled in some of the hardest games ever put on anywhere and only twice was taken out for him. Once he was hurt badly enough to be taken off the field. This was in the Hyde Park Brooklyn Poly game of 1922 where the Chicago boys won with something like 100 to 0. He broke a collar bone then.

The other time was in that famous 2 to 0 Michigan game against Chicago where Eddie Curly of the Wolverines bumped into him just after he had got away with a punt. Although badly jarred up, Walter was able to continue the game after a brief rest.

THE USE OF FUR

Hems of Rich Paltry Placed on Skirts and Sleeves.

Some of the Latest Models Show /m Coverings or Exaggerated Size Elaborately Trimmed.

A deep hem of rich fur is often introduced on velvet skirts, waterous folds draped on the hips at the corners high backed and light fitting. Gossamer and lacy, trimmed with a band of fur which runs from the left shoulder to the right hip. It is a case of fur everywhere and on everything.

In evidence of this you have only to study the model sketched. This is a beautiful winter wrap made of gray wool velvet and lacy, trimmed with bands of gray fur. The bands are separated by lines of gray silk embroidery.

You will note that the sleeves are very much trimmed with bands of fur on each. This idea of fur-trimmed sleeves is becoming more and more popular. Indeed some of the latest models show sleeves of the fur-trimmed side trimmed with the rich and narrow bands of fur. The sleeve itself is often of light mutton outline and when it is combined with a high collar cut high to the neck it is a whole new unexpected even startling.

The high shaped collar shown in the model is the latest variation of the design. This collar is entirely becoming and cozy looking. Similar collars are applied to several plain tailored coats and with the best results.

PROTECTION

Many avoid coughs, colds, bronchitis, or other winter ills, by protecting the body with the consistent use of

BANDANNA BRINGS NEW FAD

Gay Handkerchiefs Used in Various Ways Afford Decoration That is Much in Demand.

Last summer when women at one of the famous French watering places appeared with gay bandanna handkerchiefs tucked about the neck or loosely fastened to form a sash on the side, a new fashion note. This was just the beginning of a fad for handkerchiefs that is spreading like wildfire and apparently lack of imagination is not its limit.

Almost every woman who wears the bandanna of two handkerchiefs knitted together in color striking to design these are admirably adapted for wear with the sport suits of tweed or hosiery. Many women are wearing a handkerchief as a sash on the side of the dress or as a tie on the neck.

One extremely smart looking girl whose frock of serge was noticed for its appearance of smart simplicity wore a handkerchief tied about her neck with the ends slipped through a slash in the front of her waist.

The bandanna has become so familiar in its use that it is required in all of the most interesting costume competitions of the United States. These are made of a triangle of tissue broad and are brought tight about the neck and tied in a knot at the belt line. They give a girly look that is quaint and extremely fetching.

City Basketball League Will Be Opened Tonight; Frat and B. & O. to Play

Good Attraction Features First
Clash: Two Games
Thursday.

SCOTSDALE ON SATURDAY

The Connellsville City Basketball League opens tonight at the Parochial Hall. The opening game is between the Unity Fraternity five and the Baltimore & Ohio team. The attraction is a good one for opening the season. The Frat is somewhat the favorite because its members have been together several years. There will be some new faces in the Baltimore & Ohio line-up.

The City League is likely to prove popular in this city. It is being organized somewhat late in starting, but in the line-up of the five teams are some of the best available in the city. It received creditable support last year and fans will probably enjoy the best of the game put out.

On Thursday night there will be a double-header. The Coney Club and Fireman will meet and the Baltimore & Ohio team will play the Legion.

COKER HIGH SCHOOL QUINTET WILL MEET MILL TOWN OUTFIT

The Connellsville High School basketball team held a practice yesterday preparatory to the game tomorrow evening with the East Huntingdon Township All team.

The Cokers will play three games this week. The contest tomorrow is not looked forward to as a very hard one, although the visitors may surprise the Orange and Black squad.

The big game of the week and in fact the biggest of the season comes on Friday night. Scottdale will be here at that time and the Cokers are being pushed to score decisively.

The Mill Towners are in the same section of the W. P. L. A. League as Connellsville and a victory will improve the standing of the Orange and Black outfit.

The Greensburg, always packed for the Scottdale game, will see the biggest crowd of the season Friday evening. The doors do not open until 7:15 o'clock.

The Unity Five played a practice game at Trotter last night.

"Come early and avoid the rush" is good advice to those who will attend the Scottdale-Connellsville basketball game at the High School Friday night.

The City League in Uniontown has broken up. The public there didn't respond as last year, when from 700 to 1,000 attended every game. The League would not play to a few hundred persons.

Captain George Bowick, commander of the Bowitzer Company, and manager of that basketball team issues a challenge to any team in the vicinity. He would especially like to hear from Eagles or the Eagles of Uniontown. The company team has open dates on Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays of each week. Write George Bowick, Box 164, Leisensville, Pa. 3.

"Mick" McCormick is nursing a cold. He expects to be in A-1 condition for the Scottdale game.

Greensburg is here on Saturday night and the Cokers are determined to square things with the bad defeat administered during the football season.

BUSINESS IMPROVING.

Girl Is High Jumper.

Louise Bremer, sixteen-year-old daughter of Adolph Bremer, millionaire banker and real estate owner of St. Paul, Minn., is the champion high jumper, winning with ease over a field of 20 contestants at a recent meet there. Miss Bremer was not out to make a record when the photograph was taken, but the rope was placed four feet above the ground, and she found no difficulty in clearing it by several inches after a run of only a few steps.

CALIFORNIANS MAKE RECORD

During Last Three Football Seasons Twenty-seven Games Were Won Without Defeat.

The University of California eleven during the last three seasons scored the record-breaking number of 27 victories without one defeat. Only one game, that against Washington and Jefferson, was tied.

The California scoring machine piled up 1,220 points in its 28 games during the three seasons and held its opponents to 81 points. The Bears have scored 15 points to every one scored by an opposing team over the period.

LOST GOLF BALL PRIVILEGES

Offer of $850 for Retrieving Missing Pellets Is Made by Matt Malley of St. Louis.

Retrieving lost golf balls on the municipal links has been so lucrative to Matt C. Malley that he bid $850 for the 1923 privileges. This was made known by the board of public service, in announcing Mr. Malley's bid had been accepted.

Mr. Malley employs boys to search for balls. If found immediately they are returned to the owner. Many balls are not found, however, until the owners leave the links, and Mr. Malley pays the boys five cents apiece for those reports them and sells them for 10 to 40 cents. It was explained.

FATHER OF PRIZE FIGHTERS

History Points Out James Figg, First of Long List of England's Champions.

The modern father of prize fighting, a student of ring history points out, was James Figg, the first of the long list of England's prize fight champions. He established a boxing school in 1716. The art in those days was of course crude. The men fought to a finish with bare knuckles and a round lasted until one man was down. Wrestling and strangling were allowed.

What a treat this sport would be for some of the bloodthirsty that sit near the ropes and advise the modern contestants how to end it emphatically.

"Why, you can't do it! You, parlor-maid to Lady Erythra? It's the acid test! Further, you could never get away with it."

Almee regarded him pityingly.

"Billy, I may not know anything about men," she said, "but you know less than nothing about women. There isn't the woman living from six years old upwards, that isn't a born actress, when she has to be. Most of us are acting all day and every day—whether you guess it or not. I don't do that myself—that's why you and I get on. But I can't! I can get away with it, Billy!"

"He put on his cap with a bang."

"Then let's get on!" he gasped.

"There's nothing else for it now. The butler's gone. Away for Jervaulx!"

He leaped over and opened the rear door of the car. "Jump down, parlor-maid, and get in behind."

"I shan't! What for?"

"Get down, I tell you," said Billy, sternly. "I've been warned about this. If I see talking to parlor maids I get fired. In with you!"

Almee obeyed like a lamb.

"This has got my nerve," growled Billy, as he let her in the clutch. "Here's where we get ours."

He drove at a furious pace till, turning into the park he approached the abbey and drew up at the side entrance. The door stood open, and Mr. Tarbeaux, seeing the car, came out as Amy descended.

"Miss Snooks?" he asked patronizingly.

"Yes," said Almee shyly.

"If Tarbeaux stared, in spite of the snowy hair and the pink skirt, he had never seen such a vision of beauty at Jervaulx."

"Her ladyship wished to see you immediately you arrived. This way."

He strode before her through the corridor into the great hall, past the suit of armor with which he had collided in the gloom of the past dreadful night. Now, however, Mr. Tarbeaux was smiling again. "There was a gleam of appreciation in his somber eyes."

"He opened the door of the wide South window, where Lady Erythra sat erect before the fire, knitting. She did not turn her head."

"The young person, my lady," said Mr. Tarbeaux softly.

CHAPTER XV

Exposed.

Lady Erythra laid aside her knitting, and picking up a longnetto, inspected the new parlor maid with icy deliberation. Almee, though presenting an unimpaired front, trembled inwardly. There was a faint chance that her aunt might recognize the female cyclist. Lady Erythra's lips tightened to a thin line.

"I was given to understand," she said in the voice of counsel for the prosecution, "that you were considerably less prepossessing in appearance than I had you."

"Yes, my lady," said Almee meekly.

"Hm!" said Lady Erythra.

The longnetto continued to direct itself at the parlor-maid's face.

"Really, Anthony should wear stranger glasses," muttered Lady Erythra. The neatness of the girl, however, her demure air and the bit-count manner in which her hair was dressed, diluted her ladyship's disapproval at a little.

"I need not examine you as to your capacity for your duties, or your character. These have been vouched for by Lord Scroope. My housekeeper will instruct you in the rules of the establishment, which all my domestics are required to keep rigidly. There is, however, one warning that I must give you."

She was interrupted by the arrival of the butler with a telegram. Lady Erythra opened it; his message was not unwelcome to her.

"As broken down. Regret impossible arrive Jervaulx. No time. Must leave for Clovenhurst tonight."

"Very good, my lady."

Almee's heart leaped with joy. But her face remained unmoved. She continued to look demurely at the carpet.

"I was about to warn you," said Lady Erythra, "that your predecessor was discharged at a moment's notice for allowing one of my maidservants to make advances to her of an untidy nature."

"I don't understand, my lady," said Almee faintly.

"She permitted," said Lady Erythra grimly, "my chambermaid to kiss her."

The startled look of horror and disgust which Almee's features respectfully expressed, carried conviction even to Lady Erythra's mind.

"It is an unpleasant subject," said her ladyship, "but I should have wished to share myself mentioning to you. It was necessary, however, to clear the ground. I hope to hear good reports of you. You may go to the servants' hall."

Mr. Tarbeaux waited for her. Everything depends on the maid from which one regards as supreme a person as the butler. The new parlor maid looked at him steadily. Mr. Tarbeaux, with an air of satisfied satisfaction and apprehension, conducted her to the women-servants' hall. The housekeeper was absent.

At Jervaulx the male and female servants were segregated in separate apartments for meals. Mr. Tarbeaux took his charge to a room next the vast kitchen, where a maid was engaged in preparing a dinner for a party of vast importance. The parlor-maid was the only maid in the room. Mr. Tarbeaux presented the newcomer in form.

"Ladies," he said gravely, "Miss Amy Snooks, late of Scroope Towers, and took his leave."

Almee said "good-morning," shyly, and seated her self. It occurred to her that she had never seen so many plain women gathered at one table. With the exception of the maid, they were all angular and scraggy. Billy had sold together with an agent, Almee had a generous mouthful of a slice of thick bread and butter. The parlor-maid was the better, until she knew her ground. She seemed to detect an air of faint hostility in the others.

"What's the good?" Billy asked, "asked and being answered completely in a hollow voice."

"They fare pretty good," said Almee, with her mouth full of bread and butter, "but the place is dull. I look at home some time."

"You won't be here long," said the parlor-maid, "regretting his ten to stare at her."

"Why not?" said Almee with some pertness.

"You're a sight too good-looking!" replied the parlor-maid gloomily.

"Albee!" said the cook with enthusiasm, "pass this cup of tea out don't talk rubbish!"

Almee took refuge behind her stone-ware teacup. She was aware of a crossfire of glances, so sour and so long, that they made her feel as if she were in a crossfire.

The morning sun, full of the promise of a fine day, shone through the windows of the long drawing room. Almee, in a snow-white dress and apron, was holding a feather brush among priceless knick-knacks. Her manner of dusting was desultory.

"Wonder how long I can stick it?" she murmured in despondent tones. A Wartean shepherdess accepted destruction by a miracle.

"In all my life I never saw such a lot of trumps. And the taste is heaven in one's mouth—it's awful. It's all very well stirring up and saying nothing. I shall look out—I know I shall, unless I can see Billy soon."

She observed a large photograph of the Rev. and Hon. Alexander Lambie, in an ornate silver frame, standing on a table. Almee recognized the portrait, and looked at it with a steady gaze. The portrait was of a man in a military uniform, with a sword at his side. She had seen it in the house of the parlor-maid's aunt. She had seen it in the house of the parlor-maid's aunt. She had seen it in the house of the parlor-maid's aunt.

"That's torn it. All breakers come off my wages. I wish it had been his ally face."

At that moment Miss Erythra's fingers entered by one of the French windows. She was aware of a shadow and more youthful figure than any she had yet seen in the household. Georgina made a point of always being civil to her hostess's servants.

"Are you the new parlor-maid?" she said anxiously.

"Hullo, Georgie!" she exclaimed.

Georgina, during the last three days, had suffered more than any other maid should be entitled upon to endure. She stared wildly for a moment at the newcomer, and then, as if by magic, she had arrived at the door of the parlor-maid's room. She had arrived at the door of the parlor-maid's room. She had arrived at the door of the parlor-maid's room.

"A series of shifts, Almee came from her; her hands to the air."

"Georgina!" cried her cousin in a panic. "For pity's sake don't in that. You'll give the whole show away!"

"Thank! Thank! Thank!" said Georgina.

Almee had once heard a physician declare that hysteria and kindred morbidly made hysterics worse. It was time to change the treatment. She grabbed her cousin by the shoulders.

"Shut up that heavily now," said Almee, fiercely, shaking her till her teeth rattled. "Stop it! Do you want to get me hounded and put in the Georgina gasped, choked and sat down. She clung to her cousin desperately.

"I will be quiet. I will," she said. "What's the matter?"

"Try to behave like a reasonable being, and I'll tell you."

"Yes, yes! I'm better now, dear."

Almee inspected her and, judging the danger to be past, kissed her affectionately. After a cautious glance at the windows she proceeded, as Billy would have phrased it, to put her cousin wise.

Georgina, having heard her to the end, pressed both hands pathetically to the sides of her head.

"And—you're living in the servants' hall?" she said dumbly.

"It's no secret. I can tell you, Georgie. But one person's reputation Billy's sister at the garage—in a room with brass buttons."

"That—that—extraordinarily good-looking young man?" said Georgina, staring at her. "Then he is—"

"Now don't get sentimental," said Almee warmly. "Yes, he is not looking like a boy. Billy's great. If it isn't him, he's Almee." She checked herself. "Don't you see what an excellent arrangement it is, my being here—in spite of the little drawbacks?"

Georgina gave a sigh—positively of relief.

"It's better than having you wandering about the country, getting into all sorts of horrible scrapes. It will have to come out soon, and then Lady Erythra—"

"Yes, yes. Never mind Aunt. What I want you to do, Georgie, is to look out for Almee. Look out!"

Almee seized her brush and, turning to the sideboard, began dusting busily. A step was heard on the stairs, and Mr. Alexander Lambie entered by the window.

"Cousin Almee, you are looking pale," he said in tones of concern. "Is it the air? The air is so balmy. Shall we—take a little walk in the rose—"

Alexander stopped short, and his features froze. He had caught sight of Almee's face, with the light full moon in the mirror before her. He stared for a moment with an awful intensity.

"Who is this?" he said sharply, stepping towards her. "There was mention in his voice. 'Who are you?'"

Almee, preparing to meet her death, turned composedly and faced him. She dropped him a small curtsey.

income, certain rules of procedure have of necessity been established," he explained. "Among these are: (1) The best interests of the State, as a whole, have been kept in mind in distributing the necessary reductions, and hence a uniform percentage basis has not been applied; (2) No increase in salaries, but insistence on the full use of the time of employees paid for by the State; (3) Elimination of all new construction or purchases except where absolutely indispensable, as in the case of the Delaware river bridge; (4) Elimination of unnecessary overhead by assembling similar duties where practicable, under a single head (plans for reorganization will be submitted later); (5) Omission of additional compensation for officials already paid for full time, as in the case of the services of all elective and appointive officers on ex-officio boards; (6) Localities and industries specially interested should bear their share of reductions; (7) The postponement of the erection of public monuments and the least possible outlay for maintenance of public parks; (8) The auditor general has been assigned the whole amount reported by him as necessary to the full collection of all the revenues due the State."

In requesting the General Assembly to grant him greater latitude and promising the safeguards of detailed reports and monthly statements he expressed the belief that the Legislature would be entirely justified "in giving me more room to turn around in than I would ask for under ordinary circumstances."

"The present circumstances are not ordinary," he pointed out, "and the latitude I ask for will be almost indispensable assistance in bridging over the two lean years to which this budget applies."

Calling upon the Legislature for a definite school policy he said:

"Every effort has been made to secure the largest possible provision for public instruction. It has been assigned far larger funds in proportion than any other comparable purpose. The appropriation to normal schools for this biennium for administration and operation was $3,705,000. This sum in the budget estimates has been reduced to $3,000,000, a reduction of 24 per cent. The amount appropriated by the last Legislature to meet the three payments to the common schools under the Edmonds Act was $2,583,500. I have been able to find $2,100,000 for this purpose, a reduction of only about five per cent as contrasted with the reduction for all purposes of the State government of 24 1/2 per cent. Provision must be made for the subsidies to common schools. The Legislature might well consider whether the guiding principle in the school subsidy law should not be equalized on the basis of effort and ability to pay."

"A declared policy as to our institutions of higher learning is likewise required. This State has lagged behind the standards set by other states in public support of higher education. There are three plans which the Legislature might consider. First, to build up a single great State University at heavy expense to the taxpayers for new buildings and equipment. Second, to use the equipment and buildings of the three colleges and universities with corporate relations to the State—the Pennsylvania State College, the University of Pennsylvania, and the University of Pittsburgh. If this second policy is to be adopted there should be a clear understanding on the part of these three institutions that its adoption carried with it their becoming integral parts of the higher educational system of the Commonwealth. Third, to increase the subsidies to many private institutions of higher learning. Our experience with subsidies to private charities has been such as to indicate that this is not the wisest course."

"Touching on the allotments provided in the budget, he said that for the National Guard is sufficient to keep the Guard up to the standard of the national government and sufficient to secure federal aid. The appropriation for the Department of Forestry, he said, has been cut more heavily than any similar department—a fact which he declared he offered "as an evidence of good faith." The allotment for highways, he termed sufficient, "with a reasonable contribution from the motor license fund" to secure the full possible federal aid, to meet all existing obligations to counties and townships and to repair and maintain the roads.

"In ordinary times the whole of the motor license fund would be used for road maintenance," the governor explained. "In view of the present fiscal emergency, and considering that $53,000,000 has been spent on new construction within the last four years, it is a wholly just and proper that about one-third of the motor license fund should be used to secure the federal aid monies, thus providing for additional new construction for the benefit of the owners and users of motor vehicles."

"The allotment for private charities is made in a single lump sum," he said, "and is based on the assumption that aid to such institutions should be apportioned by the Public Welfare Commission strictly on the basis of services actually rendered. Since the private charities all have sources of revenue other than the State, it is right that, in the present situation, they should receive a least percentage of previous contributions than institutions wholly dependent on the State. "The institutions budgeted under the Department of Public Welfare submitted requests for deficits totaling $908,000. Many of the letters from the responsible officials of these institutions said in substance that larger sums had been requested from the Legislature; that these sums had not been granted; and that expenditures were therefore larger than appropriations. In other words, these agencies took the responsibility for fixing their own appropriations themselves without regard to the Legislature or the law. I believe that these deficit requests of $908,000 can be reduced to essential needs of about $800,000, and I have asked the Department of Public Welfare to examine each of these requests thoroughly. Bills covering these items as approved will later be presented."

The governor paid tribute to the "arduous, unselfish and most effective work" of Dr. Clyde L. King, now secretary of the commonwealth and budget director, and his associates of the Citizens' Committee and to the "invaluable cooperation" of Auditor General Lewis and others who helped in preparing the budget.

With his message he submitted tables showing in detail the deficiency appropriation for the 1931-32 biennium, the appropriation liability, an analysis of the general fund and a statement of receipts and estimated receipts by funds. The deficiency appropriation table showed the following items:

Public school employees' retirement board	$2,000,000
State Treasury	$6,527
Department of Public Instruction	$871,911
Auditor General's Department	102,724

Detailed Instructions for Ford Car Lubrication

ENGINE. Open upper level testing pet cock on right rear side of fly-wheel housing and fill reservoir with Gargoyles Mobil "E" through breather pipe opening on right side of timing-gear case until oil just begins to drip from pet cock. Inspect oil level daily. Never permit oil level to fall below that of the lower pet cock.

CAUTION. Be sure pet cock is not stopped up. Do not over-fill. Always test oil level with engine stopped. If engine is running, pet cocks will not indicate correct level.

PERIODIC DRAINING. Every 1,000 miles remove drain plug from bottom of oil reservoir and drain off old oil. Drain immediately after stopping the engine while the oil is warm and thoroughly agitated. This will carry off most of the sediment.

DO NOT FLUSH WITH KEROSENE. It is impossible to drain all the kerosene from the splash troughs and oil wells. The trapped kerosene will remain to cut the body and impair the lubricating value of the fresh oil. If flushing is deemed necessary, use a quart of fresh oil. After draining, refill.

A Summary Disposal of Waists

—you'll be disappointed if you miss it!

Handmade Waists $1.25—$2.25— $3.25

HARD to say which is the most attractive feature of this offering—the prices or the waists themselves.

They come in good quantities of dimity, voiles and batiste with carefully sewed seams. And their styles are those that cannot help but make you look attractive.

Some may be counter marked but a whisk of an iron will remove that. They're greatly reduced to $1.25, $2.25, $3.25.

Waists—Second Floor

Waists in Silk $1.49—$2.49— $3.49

THE SECRET of these waists' attractiveness lies in the pleasure that their bright colors and soft silken materials can bring you.

Of course, many of them are not the latest styles—which is one reason why we are offering them to you at such greatly reduced prices. But they are all neat and becoming and values of a sort that can come but once or twice a year. We'd like to have you look them over.
